

Drawing Conclusions

Jack woke from his nap and walked out onto the deck. The smell of burgers was in the air. There was a red plaid plastic tablecloth on the picnic table. On the table were a stack of paper plates, a stack of napkins, and a basket of plastic silverware. There were also bowls of salads covered in plastic wrap, still frosty from being in the refrigerator. His father, wearing an apron Jack had given him for father's day decades ago, turned away from the grill. "I'm glad to see you!" he said. "I was afraid you might sleep through the festivities!"

1. Draw a conclusion about Jack.

2. Draw a conclusion about the setting (time of year, day of the week)

3. Draw another conclusion from the passage.
