

Name _____ Pun

Pun

When you make a pun, you use a word in a way that intends it to be understood in more than one way. Some puns interchange similar sounding words. Puns make use of homophones, homographs, metonyms, or figurative language, and they can be both intentional and unintentional. Though puns are often funny, they don't have to be. DIRECTIONS: Look at the example below. Then see if you can complete the puns for the remaining rows. Use the pictures as clues.

Normal Sentence	Pun	Play on Words With
My statues fell when my shelf broke. On only have myself to blame.	My statues fell. On only have myshelf to blame.
A small mountain made a joke. It was hilarious.
I've met twenty-five letters of the alphabet, but I don't know why.		