

Name _____ Commands

Commands

Commands, requests, invitations, warnings, and instructions are a type of sentence called an imperative. The subject of an imperative sentence is "you," but the word "you" is not explicitly stated. When you is the subject of an imperative sentence, it is called you understood. In an imperative sentence, you is understood to be the subject without being explicitly said.

You included as the subject	Command with you understood
You get back to work.	Get back to work.
You stop sitting around.	Stop sitting around.

DIRECTIONS: Rewrite each statement as a command.

1. You hand me an apple.
2. You take a bath.
3. You come outside with me.
4. You sit down and rest.
5. You close the curtains.
6. You pet that poor dog.

