Foreshadowing

Foreshadowing means giving the audience a hint or clue of what's coming later in the story. Foreshadowing can use imagery, language, or symbolism. There are four types of foreshadowing. Match each type to its definition.

Indirect

Symbolism and/or Omen

Prophecy

Direct

_____

The author explicitly suggests what might happen in the story.

_____

The author gives subtle clues to what might happen in the story.

_____

Important events in the plot are told without revealing the details of how it will happen.

_____

Minor or seemingly unimportant details in the story are actually hints about what is going to happen.
