

ANSWERS

Summaries will vary. A boy cries wolf when there is no wolf so many times that when a wolf really comes and he needs help, no one will come help because they don't believe him.

Parables are short stories that teach a moral or spiritual lesson, but parables tend to have people as characters, while fables, allegories, and apologues have animals or objects as characters.

the boy and the villagers; they are people moral