

Name _____

Alliteration

Alliteration

Alliteration creates a musical effect that makes reading more pleasurable. Compare the two sentences below:

Tanya is a math instructor.

Tanya teaches on Tuesdays.

Alliteration draws the reader's attention to certain words or phrases. You can use alliteration to make a point or to connote meaning to the reader.

DIRECTIONS: Add alliteration to each sentence. You can add or change words as long as the original meaning of the sentence does not change.

1. The dog is asleep.

2. Children are playing.

3. She takes a walk.

4. A man is upset.

5. Breakfast was tasty.
