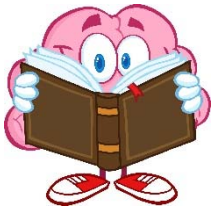
Name _____ Satire



Parody

Parody means to imitate the techniques and/or style of some person, place, or thing, but most typically the style of a work (song, book, movie, etc.). The purpose of satire is constructive social criticism, and as an element of satire, parody is most often used to mock common conventions in literature and style.

Think of a work you have read that uses parody as a tool for satire. Name the work, explain what it parodies, and why.
