

Adverbial Clauses

An adverbial clause is a subordinate clause that modifies a verb in a complex sentence. An adverbial clause tells more information about the verb in the sentence. Examples:

I eat well whenever I visit my mom.

I cut the grass after I finished working.

Now that you know where I live, stop by.

Write five complex sentences that include adverbial clauses beginning with the subordinating conjunction in parentheses.

(if then) 1.

(although) 2.

(as much as) 3.

(that) 4.

(unless) 5.
