

Appositives

An appositive is a noun or pronoun that identifies another noun or pronoun in a sentence. When diagramming a sentence with an appositive, place the appositive immediately after the word it identifies, and enclose it in parentheses.

EXAMPLE: Jack, a dog, runs.

DIRECTIONS: On a separate page diagram each sentence below. Follow the example.

1. Helen, a great baker, made some cookies.
2. Mitch, a fit man, jogs often.
3. My sister, a lawyer, practices law.
4. Vinnie, a sweet kid, shared his cupcakes.
5. My necklace, an expensive gift, becomes me.
6. Those cats, crazy felines, yowled loudly.
7. Kevin, a famous athlete, trains here.
