The Tale of the Sail and the Sale

One sunny day, a boy named Tim decided to go on a sail with his dad. They had a small boat with a big sail. Tim was excited because it was his first time sailing.

As they sailed across the lake, Tim saw a sign on the shore. The sign said, "Big Sale Today!" Tim asked his dad, "What is a sale?"

His dad smiled and said, "A sale is when things are sold for a lower price than usual. Maybe we can check it out later."

Tim nodded and continued to enjoy the sail. The wind blew gently, and the sailboat glided smoothly over the water. Tim saw fish swimming and birds flying in the sky.

After sailing, Tim and his dad went to see the sale. There were many toys and games. Tim found a toy boat just like the one they had sailed in. It was on sale for a very low price!

"Can we buy this toy boat, Dad?" Tim asked.

His dad agreed. "Sure, Tim. It's a great deal!"

Tim was happy. He learned that a sail on a boat and a sale in a store sound the same but mean different things. It was a fun and special day for Tim and his dad.
