Gnome's Treasure

In a quiet village, a gnome named Knoll found an old map in a wooden chest. The map showed a trail leading to a knoll where treasure was buried. Knoll's friend, Knobby, was excited to join the adventure.

They followed the map and came across a knotted rope bridge. Carefully crossing it, they entered a dense forest. Knobby pointed to a sign hidden in the vines that read "Tunnel ahead." They continued and found a small entrance covered by gnarly roots.

Crawling through the entrance, they discovered a grand underground cavern filled with glittering crystals. Knoll and Knobby saw a lantern hanging from a branch, illuminating a path. They followed the light and found an abandoned cabin with a rusty lock.

Knoll knocked, and the door creaked open, revealing a room filled with gold coins and sparkling gems. There was also a note with a silent "n," saying, "Kindness leads to true riches."

Happy with their discovery, Knoll and Knobby shared their treasure with the villagers, teaching everyone the value of kindness.
