

Name _____

A Journalist's Encounter with Dr. King

Short Answer Key

1. The young journalist wanted to interview Dr. King to learn about his motivations and dreams during the Civil Rights Movement.
2. Dr. King's dream was a world where people of all races would be treated equally, hate would be replaced with love and understanding, and children could play together regardless of their background. He hoped to achieve social justice and unity through peaceful means.
3. Dr. King remained committed to nonviolence by drawing inspiration from figures like Mahatma Gandhi and believing in the power of love and understanding to bring about change.
4. The interview with Dr. King had a profound impact on the young journalist, leaving them moved and with a renewed sense of purpose in advocating for justice through their writing.
5. Dr. King's dream became the journalist's dream as they were inspired by his message of equality, love, and peaceful change.

