

ANSWERS

1. Generally, no. They are boring and predictable, and their use is considered bad writing.
2. To connect with your audience. Certain idiomatic phrases and slang words resonate with different audiences.
3. To simplify concepts when teaching something new.
4. For characterization. Having a character always speak in clichés tells readers that the character is not thinking in a very original way.

Examples will vary.