

Name _____

The Frosty Frenzy

In the snowy village of Frostville, there lived a friendly reindeer named Fredrick. Fredrick was known for his bright red scarf and his adventurous spirit. One frosty morning, Fredrick woke up to find the entire village covered in a fresh blanket of snow. It was the perfect day for a new adventure!

Fredrick decided to visit his best friend, Freya the fox, who lived in the forest. On his way, he passed by the frozen lake where the village children were playing. "Come and join us, Fredrick!" they called. But Fredrick had other plans. He wanted to find the legendary Frosty Falls, a hidden waterfall said to be made entirely of ice.

As Fredrick trotted through the forest, he met Franny the frog, who was frantically hopping around. "What's wrong, Franny?" Fredrick asked.

"I've lost my favorite frying pan!" Franny croaked. "I need it to make my famous fried flies."

Fredrick offered to help. "Don't worry, Franny. We'll find it together." They searched high and low, through the frosty trees and under frozen logs. Finally, they found the frying pan stuck in a frosty bush. Franny was so grateful that she decided to join Fredrick on his quest to find Frosty Falls.

As they continued their journey, they encountered a group of frisky squirrels. The squirrels were busy gathering food for the winter. One of the squirrels, named Frankie, told them that Frosty Falls was not far away. "Just follow the frozen river," Frankie said with a friendly grin.

Fredrick, Franny, and Frankie followed the frozen river until they heard the sound of rushing water. They had found Frosty Falls! The waterfall was a breathtaking sight, with sparkling ice cascading down in shimmering sheets. The friends played around the falls, enjoying the frosty spray and the fresh winter air.

After a fun-filled day, they returned to Frostville, where the villagers welcomed them with a grand feast. Everyone celebrated the discovery of Frosty Falls, and Fredrick was hailed as a hero for leading the adventure. From that day on, Fredrick, Franny, and Frankie were known as the Frosty Friends, always ready for a new frosty frenzy.

