The Great Leaf Hunt

One fine morning, three friends, Dean, Leah, and Seal, decided to go on a great leaf hunt in the forest. They wanted to find leaves of every shape and color.

Dean, who was a bear, brought a big basket to carry all the leaves. Leah, a deer, had a keen eye for spotting the prettiest leaves. Seal, a playful seal, was excited to join the fun and make new discoveries.

As they walked through the forest, they found leaves in shades of red, yellow, and orange. Dean found a big, crunchy leaf that looked like a star. Leah spotted a tiny leaf with lots of little holes in it, and Seal found a shiny green leaf near the stream.

They gathered all the leaves and sat down to rest. Dean spread out the leaves to look at their beautiful collection. "These leaves are really neat!" said Leah. "Let's count how many we have," suggested Seal.

Together, they counted the leaves and realized they had found exactly ten. "What a great leaf hunt!" Dean said with a big smile. The friends were happy and decided to go on another adventure soon.
