The Prehistoric Picnic of Presto the Dragon

In a prehistoric land, there lived a friendly dragon named Presto. Presto had a special preference for organizing picnics. One day, he decided to plan a prehistoric picnic for all his friends.

Before the picnic, Presto had to prepare all the food. He preheated his oven to bake some delicious prehistoric pastries. He also prepared some fresh fruit and prehistoric juice. Presto wanted everything to be perfect.

Presto sent out invitations to his friends. He was precise about the time and place, making sure everyone knew the picnic was at the prehistoric park. Presto's friends were all excited and appreciated his efforts to plan such a fun event.

When the day of the picnic arrived, Presto and his friends gathered at the park. They played games like prehistoric tag and had a contest to see who could make the best prehistoric sandcastle. Everyone was impressed by Presto's planning and enjoyed the delicious food.

At the end of the day, Presto's friends thanked him for the amazing picnic. They all agreed it was the best prehistoric picnic they had ever attended. Presto was happy to see everyone having fun and knew he would plan another picnic soon.
