

ANSWERS

- Introduces conflict
- Most exciting part
- Introduces characters
- Introduces setting
- The main character has changed
- Characters try to solve the problem
- Characters solve the problem
- Characters fail to solve the problem
- Ties up any loose ends
- Characters face obstacles
- The protagonist has to face the antagonist
- Subplots are tied up
- There is an indication of where things go from here
- The protagonist definitively achieves or fails to achieve story goal
- You see how things will be different now after the action of the story
- You see that nothing will be different after the action of the story

The climax of a story is the turning point, when the main character's problem is about to be solved. The climax is typically the most exciting part of the story.

