The Great Peanut Feast

One bright morning, a little bear named Bean woke up with a big idea. Bean loved peanuts and wanted to have a great peanut feast with his friends. He went to find his friend, a monkey named Peach, to help him.

Bean and Peach went to the peanut tree near the stream. They picked lots of peanuts and put them in a big heap. "This will be the best peanut feast ever!" said Bean. They spread a blanket and put the peanuts in the middle.

Soon, their friends came to join the feast. There was a raccoon named Cream, a frog named Leap, and a bird named Beak. Everyone was excited to eat the peanuts. They all sat around the heap and began to eat.

As they were eating, Beak found a big peanut hidden under a leaf. "Look what I found!" she chirped. Everyone cheered and laughed. They played games and told stories as they enjoyed their feast.

After eating, they decided to play near the stream. Leap showed them how to jump from rock to rock. Cream and Peach played hide and seek among the trees. Bean was happy to see everyone having so much fun.

As the sun began to set, Bean and his friends cleaned up and said goodbye. "This was the best peanut feast ever!" said Bean. They all agreed and promised to have another feast soon.
