

Name _____

The Day the Crayons Went on Strike

Short Answer Key

1. Red felt underused, Blue was worn down, Pink felt too girly, and Black felt overshadowed.
2. The students organized a petition, collected signatures, and delivered it to the teacher.
3. The teacher agreed to the crayons' demands, including more vacation days, better sharpeners, and fair distribution of coloring time.
4. Everyone learned the importance of cooperation and understanding, realizing that even the smallest voices should be heard and respected.
5. They threw a colorful crayon party, complete with crayon-shaped cookies and a rainbow cake, to show their appreciation for the crayons' contribution to the classroom.

