Short Answer Key

1. The rabbit doesn't just enter the mitten—he jumps in on top of the mole, making the situation more crowded.
2. The mouse is the tiniest animal, but her tiny whiskers cause the giant bear to sneeze, sending everyone flying.
3. The mitten starts out small but stretches to fit all the animals, making it look funny and misshapen.
4. The bear is much bigger than any of the other animals, so watching him try to squeeze into a tiny mitten is amusing.
5. If the mitten were bigger, the animals wouldn't be squished together, and the humor of them stretching it to its limits would be lost.
