

A Character's Words

What a character says about themselves can tell readers a lot about who they are and about the story problem.

My Main Character: _____

What is your MC's primary character trait?

Character Trait: _____

Think of two important scenes from your story. For each scene, brainstorm something your MC could say at a crucial moment that will help reveal that trait to your reader.

Scene: _____

A large, empty rectangular box with a jagged left edge, resembling a speech bubble, intended for brainstorming dialogue for the first scene.

Scene: _____

A second large, empty rectangular box with a jagged left edge, similar to the first one, intended for brainstorming dialogue for the second scene.
