The Mysterious Splash at the Spring Festival

In the vibrant town of Springfield, the annual Spring Festival was the highlight of the year. The festival was full of colorful decorations, exciting rides, and delicious food. This year, however, something mysterious was happening, and it all started with a loud splash.

Trent, his sister Trina, and their friend Bryce were at the festival, enjoying the sights and sounds. As they walked past the stream that ran through the festival grounds, they heard a strange noise. "Did you hear that splash?" Trent asked. "Yes," Trina replied. "It sounded like it came from the stream."

The three friends ran to the edge of the stream and saw ripples spreading out from a spot near the bridge. Suddenly, a small, glittering creature leapt out of the water and splashed back in, leaving them all astonished.

"Did you see that?" Bryce exclaimed. "What was that?" Determined to solve the mystery, the trio decided to investigate. They climbed onto the bridge for a better view and peered into the clear water. They spotted more glittering creatures swimming near the bottom, twinkling like stars. "Those look like tiny dragons!" Trent said excitedly. "I've read about them in fairy tales."

"Let's try to catch one," Trina suggested. They found a net from one of the festival games and carefully lowered it into the water. After a few tries, they managed to catch one of the tiny dragons.

The dragon was about the size of a goldfish and had shimmering scales and delicate wings. It looked at them curiously but didn't seem afraid. The friends gently placed it in a jar filled with water and took it to the festival's information booth.

"Excuse me," Trina said to the lady at the booth. "We found this in the stream. Do you know what it is?" The lady's eyes widened in surprise. "Oh my! You've found a glitter dragon! They are very rare and only appear during the Spring Festival. Legend says they bring good luck and happiness."

The friends were thrilled by their discovery. They carefully released the glitter dragon back into the stream, watching as it swam away, leaving a trail of sparkles behind.

The rest of the day was filled with fun and excitement as the news of the glitter dragons spread through the festival. Trent, Trina, and Bryce were celebrated as the heroes who had discovered the magical creatures. They felt proud and happy, knowing they had solved the mystery of the splash at the Spring Festival.
