Martin's Interstellar Message

Open-Ended Response Answer Key

1. Martin Luther King Jr. likely chose to share his message with the Lumorians because he believed that the principles of equality and justice were universal and could apply to any society facing discrimination and prejudice.
2. The Lumorians' society changed as they began to treat each other with fairness and respect. The transformation teaches us that change is possible when people come together to address discrimination and prejudice, and that love and understanding can help bridge divides.
3. Lina demonstrated qualities of leadership, empathy, and a strong commitment to equality, making her a suitable leader for Lumoria's united Lumorian society.
4. Communication and understanding play a crucial role in resolving conflicts and discrimination by promoting empathy, breaking down stereotypes, and fostering cooperation. These principles are applicable both on Earth and in other civilizations, like the Lumorians, facing similar issues.
