

Name _____

The Enchanted Rangoli Journey

Open-Ended Response Answer Key

1. Nisha and her family's perception of Diwali changed significantly after their magical journey. They realized that Diwali was not just about decorations but also about the rich and diverse traditions and cultures that make India unique. They gained a deeper appreciation for the festival's spiritual and cultural significance.
2. The Sharma family had several memorable experiences during their journey through India. They witnessed the Ganga Aarti in Varanasi, enjoyed the Diwali processions in Jaipur, danced during the Kali Puja celebration in Kolkata, and visited the Golden Temple in Amritsar. Each experience exposed them to different aspects of Diwali celebrations in various regions of India.
3. The enchanted rangoli symbolized the magic and diversity of Diwali by coming to life and taking the Sharma family on a whimsical journey through India. This journey allowed them to experience the different traditions and cultures associated with Diwali in various parts of the country, highlighting the festival's rich and diverse nature.
4. The Sharma family felt grateful at the end of their magical journey because they had the opportunity to explore and appreciate the cultural richness of Diwali across different regions of India. They gained a deeper understanding of the festival's significance and developed a sense of gratitude for the diverse traditions they had experienced.

