A doctor who has recently arrived in Costa Rica is on duty at a medical clinic on a rainy night. A helicopter marked with InGen Construction arrives, bringing an injured worker. The injured man looks like the victim of a wild animal mauling, but the man with him tells the doctor the man was ran over and dragged by a backhoe.

The injured man whispers, “Lo sa raptor” before he dies. InGen collects his body. When they are gone, the doctor looks up the word raptor, which means “bird of prey.”
