Mouse Mayhem

Open-Ended Response Answer Key

1. Answers will vary. Example: "I would set the book in a zoo, where the mouse could take care of different animals and cause even more funny mix-ups."
2. Answers will vary. Example: "Animals make the stories funnier because they act like humans, but in a way that's silly and unexpected."
3. Some readers may say the books are predictable because they follow a pattern, while others may say they are exciting because they never know what will happen next.
4. Answers will vary. Example: "Cause and effect makes the books fun because one small thing leads to bigger and bigger situations that get out of control."
