

Name _____

Circular Fun

Short Answer Key

1. The story repeats actions in a way that makes the reader laugh, like when Mouse asks for something new every time he sees a school supply.
2. Readers enjoy knowing the pattern because they can guess what might happen next, but the way Mouse reacts still keeps it fun.
3. One example is when Mouse asks for a sandwich, which reminds him that he needs a notebook to write about it.
4. It's satisfying because it makes the story feel complete and brings everything back to the start.
5. Without the circular structure, the story might feel random instead of connected and exciting.
