

ANSWERS

Assonance is a literary device created by purposefully repeating vowel sounds in nearby words

Alliteration is a literary device created by purposefully repeating consonant sounds in nearby words

What do Assonance and Alliteration have in common?

Both are literary devices created by purposefully repeating the same sounds in nearby words.

Both can create both rhythm and mood that can suggest things to the reader.

Both had a musical quality that makes reading more pleasurable.

Both can be used to draw the reader's attention to particular words.