

ANSWERS

Sarcasm

typically abrasive and insincere intention is to mock, satirize, or make fun of something not typically intended to be benign
Can be classified into 4 types

Verbal Irony

typically benign

Both Sarcasm and Verbal Irony both are literary devices that are based in reader or audience expectations

both mean saying one thing when you actually mean for something else to be understood both can be abrasive and insincere