

Name _____ Drawing Conclusions

Drawing Conclusions

A conclusion is determination a reader makes about a character, setting, or event in a text. When you read, you draw conclusions by thinking about what you have read. Drawing conclusions helps you to understand the story.

DIRECTIONS: Follow these steps to draw a conclusion about a character in the text. Write your notes beside each step.

Character Name: _____

Read the text. Write down the main things the text says about the character.
What can you infer about the character from the text?
Think about what you have already identified. What other information follows as a logical next step, given what you know?
Write your conclusion about the character.
