

Name _____

The Enchanted Mango Tree of Diwali Delights

In a quaint village nestled in the heart of India, there stood a mango tree like no other. This tree was no ordinary mango tree; it was magical, and it bore Diwali-themed fruits with surprising properties.

As the Festival of Diwali approached, the villagers would gather under the tree in anticipation. The mangoes on this tree were not just any mangoes; they were golden and glimmered like stars, and each bore a unique Diwali symbol. Some had tiny diyas etched onto their skin, while others showcased intricate rangolis.

The legend of the tree had been passed down through generations. It was said that long ago, a humble gardener named Amar had planted a mango seed in his backyard. One Diwali night, a shooting star had streaked across the sky, and its light had fallen upon the tree, infusing it with magic.

The villagers believed that these special mangoes held the power to bring joy and blessings. They also had unique properties when consumed. For instance, eating a mango with a diya symbol would fill one's heart with warmth and happiness, while a rangoli mango would enhance creativity and artistry.

Every Diwali, the villagers would carefully pluck the enchanted mangoes and share them with their loved ones. The entire village would be abuzz with the laughter of children and the aroma of delicious mango dishes.

One year, as Diwali approached, a mischievous monkey named Bansi decided to explore the magical mango tree. He had heard tales of its wonders and couldn't resist the temptation. Climbing the tree, Bansi plucked a mango with a diya symbol and took a big bite.

To his surprise, he felt a rush of joy and warmth that he had never experienced before. Overcome with happiness, he decided to share the mangoes with his fellow monkeys. Soon, the entire troop was filled with joy, swinging from tree to tree, and spreading laughter throughout the village.

The villagers, noticing the playful monkeys, realized that something was amiss. They followed the monkeys to the magical mango tree and discovered the secret of the enchanted fruits. They laughed heartily, appreciating the innocence and playfulness of the monkeys.

From that day on, the villagers and the monkeys shared the Diwali mangoes, celebrating the festival together in unity and happiness. The enchanted mango tree became a symbol of the power of Diwali to bring people and creatures of all kinds together in the spirit of joy and celebration.

And so, the magical mango tree continued to bear its Diwali-themed fruits, filling the village with happiness, love, and the true essence of Diwali.

