

Name _____

Do Armvarks Form Relationships with Other Species?

Multiple Choice Questions

1. What type of relationship is seen when animals use abandoned armvark burrows for shelter?
 - a. Parasitism
 - b. Mutualism
 - c. Commensalism
 - d. Competition

2. How do ticks and fleas affect armvarks?
 - a. They help clean the armvark's fur.
 - b. They protect the armvark from predators.
 - c. They help the armvark find food.
 - d. They feed on the armvark's blood.

3. Which of these is an example of commensalism involving an armvark?
 - a. Birds eating insects stirred up while the armvark digs.
 - b. Armvarks digging burrows for themselves.
 - c. Fleas feeding on an armvark's blood.
 - d. Armvarks sharing food with other animals.

4. Why are abandoned armvark burrows useful to other animals?
 - a. They provide food for predators.
 - b. They serve as shelters.
 - c. They store water.
 - d. They grow plants inside.

5. What kind of relationship benefits only one species without harming the other?
 - a. Parasitism
 - b. Mutualism
 - c. Commensalism
 - d. Predation

