

Name _____

Actions and Consequences

Open-Ended Response Questions

1. How does Roald Dahl use humor to teach lessons about consequences in the story?
2. Do you think the punishments for the children were fair? Why or why not?
3. If you could change the fate of one child in the factory, who would it be and why?
4. What do you think the novel is trying to say about making good choices in life?

