

Name _____

The Haunted House Hoax

Meet Billy and his group of friends: Zoe, Max, Lily, and Eddie. They were known in their town for their love of pranks and their unique sense of humor. One sunny afternoon, they decided to pull off the biggest prank of their lives: making their friend, Sarah, believe her house was haunted.

Their plan was to dress up as ghosts, make eerie noises, and create a spooky atmosphere inside Sarah's house. They knew it would be hilarious when Sarah freaked out and realized it was all a prank. Little did they know, things were about to take a supernatural turn.

As the group gathered in Sarah's living room, dressed in white sheets with cut-out eye holes, they began making ghostly moans and wailing sounds. The lights flickered, and the room suddenly turned ice-cold. The friends exchanged nervous glances, but they assumed it was just a power outage.

Just as they were about to reveal themselves, a mysterious gust of wind blew through the room, extinguishing their candles. The sheets on the friends' backs seemed to come to life, twisting and turning as if possessed. Panicking, they tried to run, but the doors slammed shut, trapping them inside.

In the midst of the chaos, the group saw a faint, glowing figure at the center of the room. It whispered softly, "Who dares disturb my rest?" It was Sarah's grandmother, a sweet and mischievous spirit, who had passed away years ago. She had decided to join in the prank from the other side.

Sarah's grandmother, realizing her family was in distress, burst into laughter, and the room returned to normal. The friends, shaken but relieved, explained their prank gone wrong. They all had a good laugh, and Sarah's grandmother even shared some ghostly stories from her time on the other side.

From that day on, Sarah's house became known as the friendliest haunted house in town, with her grandmother's playful spirit keeping an eye on things. The group of friends never attempted a supernatural prank again, but they couldn't help but smile whenever they remembered the day their ghostly joke turned into a heartwarming encounter with the other side.

