

Name _____

The Quest to Bring Back Color

Open-Ended Response Answer Key

1. Answers may vary. Some students might choose Alex's knowledge of nature to better understand the environments they encountered. Others might choose Max's strength and agility for physical challenges like climbing and swimming.
2. Answers may vary, but students could describe how the desert posed the challenge of extreme heat, the Whispering Woods needed tree revival, the Crystal Caverns were a maze, the tundra was freezing, and the ocean required swimming skills.
3. Students might share stories of personal or historical significance, such as a tale of overcoming adversity, a community project that brought positive change, or a famous individual who inspired others with their determination.
4. Responses may vary, but students might feel elated, hopeful, and inspired by the return of color. It could make their daily life more enjoyable, as they experience a world full of beauty and wonder, which might lead to a more optimistic outlook.

