

Name _____

Do Bears Form Relationships with Other Species?

Multiple Choice Questions

1. What is mutualism?
  - a) One species benefits while the other is harmed
  - b) Both species benefit
  - c) One species benefits, and the other is not affected
  - d) Neither species benefits

2. How do bears help plants when they eat berries?
  - a) They destroy the plants
  - b) They use plants for shelter
  - c) They pull plants from the ground
  - d) They spread seeds through droppings

3. Which of these is an example of commensalism involving bears?
  - a) Bears hunting salmon
  - b) Bears digging for roots
  - c) Ravens eating leftover food from a bear
  - d) Ticks feeding on a bear

4. What type of relationship do ticks have with bears?
  - a) Mutualism
  - b) Commensalism
  - c) Parasitism
  - d) Cooperation

5. How do bears help the soil in their environment?
  - a) By digging for food and mixing nutrients
  - b) By chasing other animals away
  - c) By sleeping during winter
  - d) By walking on plants

