What's on the Menu for Betta Fish?

Open-Ended Response Answer Key

1. Betta fish enjoy live foods like bloodworms because they are similar to what they would eat in the wild, and they are high in protein.
2. In the wild, Betta fish hunt for insects and larvae, but as pets, they eat prepared pellets or flakes and occasional live treats like bloodworms.
3. If I were caring for a Betta fish, I would feed it Betta pellets for daily nutrition and live bloodworms or brine shrimp as a treat to keep it happy and healthy.
4. Understanding what Betta fish eat in the wild helps fish owners give them the right food in their tanks, ensuring they stay healthy and live longer.
