

Name _____

Bosch's Fantastical Odyssey

In Bosch's triptych, a world unfolds,
A surreal journey, strange and bold,
A fantastical realm, both dark and bright,
In this painting's depths, our minds take flight.
On the left, we see Earth's creation anew,
A pristine world, nature's debut,
But lurking behind, temptation's snare,
A serpent's coil, a warning to bear.
In the center, a ship sails the seas,
With creatures bizarre and unknown species,
A fish with legs, a man with wings,
In Bosch's world, imagination springs.
And on the right, a vision of hell,
A nightmarish realm, where demons dwell,
A fiery pit, where sinners pay,
For their transgressions, night and day.
Bosch's brush conjures a dreamlike scene,
Where reality blends with the surreal, it seems,
A fantastical odyssey, strange and grand,
In this triptych world, we hope to understand.

