

Name _____

Breaking It Down: The World of Breakdancing

Short Answer Key

1. Judges in breakdancing battles determine the winner based on creativity, style, and technical prowess.
2. "Toprock" in breakdancing refers to the dance performed while standing upright. It sets the tone for the routine and often includes rhythmic steps and gestures that showcase the dancer's style and musicality.
3. One power move in breakdancing is the "windmill," which involves spinning on the ground while balancing on one's hands and moving the legs in a circular motion.
4. Breakdancing has spread worldwide through competitions, festivals, and cultural exchange, influencing different cultures and inspiring new generations of dancers.
5. Regional styles in breakdancing include "popping and locking" on the West Coast and "b-boying" in the Bronx, each with its unique techniques and influences.

