

Name _____

Building for Business

Short Answer – Answer Key

1. Retail stores have features such as storefronts, display windows, and storage areas that make them suitable for showcasing merchandise. They often have welcoming and attractive interiors to draw in customers.
2. Common amenities in hotels include restaurants, pools, conference facilities, fitness centers, and room service. These amenities enhance the guest experience by providing convenience and additional services.
3. Site preparation is important in the construction of commercial buildings because it involves clearing and leveling the construction site, ensuring proper drainage, and creating a stable foundation for the building.
4. Inspections in the construction process are necessary to ensure that the building complies with building codes and safety standards. They help identify and rectify any issues or violations to ensure the safety and functionality of the building.
5. Medical facilities include hospitals, clinics, and medical offices. Hospitals provide a wide range of medical services, including emergency care and surgeries. Clinics often focus on specific medical specialties, and medical offices are where doctors see patients for appointments and treatments.

