Unveiling Butterfly Myths: Separating Fact from Fiction

Short Answer Key

1. A common misconception about butterflies' lifespan is that they live for only one day.
2. Butterflies primarily feed on nectar.
3. The misconception about butterfly stings is that they can sting like bees.
4. Touching butterfly wings can potentially cause harm if done excessively or with rough hands, but gentle touching is unlikely to cause damage.
5. Not all butterfly species migrate. Migration is a behavior exhibited by certain species in response to changing seasons or environmental conditions.
