Camels' Daily Habits and Behaviors

Open-Ended Response Answer Key

1. Camels' daily habits like searching for food during the day and resting at night help them conserve energy and survive harsh conditions.
2. Camels are used for transportation because they are strong, can carry heavy loads, and can go long periods without food or water.
3. If camels did not live in groups, they might be more vulnerable to predators and have difficulty finding resources.
4. To care for a camel in the desert, you would need to provide it with food, water, and shade while ensuring it is not overworked.
