Capturing Creativity

Open-Ended Response Answer Key

1. The Haiku suggests that creative passions ignite the desire to use photography as a means to capture and express one's unique perspective on life.
2. One possible situation might be capturing a beautiful sunset at the beach because it was a memorable and breathtaking moment that they wanted to remember and share with others.
3. Photography can help people appreciate the beauty in everyday life by encouraging them to pay attention to small details and moments that they might otherwise overlook. It allows them to find beauty in the ordinary.
4. Some people might prefer photography over other forms of art because it provides a quick and tangible way to capture and share moments, and it allows them to express themselves visually rather than through words or paint.
