Cell Phones in Schools: A Digital Dilemma

Open-Ended Response Answer Key

1. Responses may vary, but students should provide their perspective on whether cell phones should be allowed in schools and support their opinion with reasons.
2. Possible rules or policies could include allowing cell phone use during breaks, prohibiting them during class, and implementing consequences for misuse.
3. Students can use cell phones responsibly by using them for educational purposes, following school policies, and respecting their peers' privacy. Responsible usage is important to maintain a productive learning environment.
