

Name _____

Changing Immigration

Short Answer Key

1. The U.S. needed workers for growing cities, factories, and railroads, so it welcomed many immigrants.
2. Some people thought too many immigrants were coming at once, and they feared losing jobs.
3. The Chinese Exclusion Act stopped most Chinese immigrants from entering the U.S.
4. Castle Garden was too small and crowded, so the government needed a larger and more organized station.
5. Ellis Island made immigration more organized, with medical and legal checks before people could enter the country.
