Comic Creations: Unleash Your Inner Superhero!

Short Answer Key

1. The final step in creating your own comic book is coloring the comic.
2. It is important to think about colors, patterns, and symbols when designing your hero's costume because it helps represent your hero's personality and powers.
3. When creating a story for your comic book, you can consider your hero's mission, allies, enemies, and give your hero a unique name.
4. You can make your characters in your comic book come to life by giving them expressive faces, dynamic poses, and detailed backgrounds.
5. Answers may vary. (e.g., I would share my finished comic book with my friends because I want to share the fun and excitement of the story I created.)
