How Do Monkeys Communicate?

Open-Ended Response Answer Key

1. Vocalizations help monkeys warn each other about predators and keep their group safe by communicating important information.
2. Monkeys have many ways to communicate because they live in social groups and need to share information, solve problems, and build relationships.
3. If monkeys couldn't communicate, they would struggle to warn each other about danger, find food, and stay connected as a group.
4. Grooming is more than just keeping clean because it shows trust and strengthens friendships within the monkey group, helping them work together.
