Cosmic Clockwork

In the vast expanse of cosmic space,
A clockwork mechanism finds its place.
Gears of existence, intricate and vast,
Turning in harmony from first to last.
Each gear a symbol of a different kind,
A facet of life, a story intertwined.
The largest gear, like the sun so bright,
Radiates warmth, gives life its light.
The moon's gear waxes and wanes,
Guiding tides, cycles in its reins.
Stars twinkle in the night, a celestial dance,
Their gears of dreams, in the universe's expanse.
Planets in orbit, like clock hands they spin,
Marking the time as they whirl within.
Each gear, a world with its own story,
In this cosmic clockwork, bathed in glory.
The gears of nature, wind, and rain,
Bring growth and change, a rhythmic refrain.
Animals, too, with their gears of life,
Navigate the world amidst joy and strife.
Humanity's gear, so complex and vast,
Building a legacy, from first to last.
With each turn, we shape our fate,
In this cosmic clockwork, we create.
As time marches on, gears never cease,
In this grand design, they find their peace.
A symphony of existence, a clockwork's song,
In the cosmic mechanism, we all belong.
