The Dream Diary Discovery

Open-Ended Response Questions

1. Consider the dreams in Alex's diary. How do you think dreams can reflect a person's creativity and imagination? Have you ever had a dream that you found particularly creative or imaginative?
2. Reflect on the bond between Alex and Sarah. How did their day change from a school project to an unexpected adventure of reading and sharing dreams? How do shared experiences like this strengthen friendships?
3. Dreams often contain elements of fantasy and absurdity. Why do you think people's dreams can be so different from their waking experiences? What might be the purpose of having such imaginative dreams?
4. Imagine you discovered a dream diary like Alex's. What kind of dream would you hope to find inside, and why? How would you react to reading someone else's dreams?
