

Name _____

Screen's Allure: A Sonnet on Digital Temptation

In a world of screens, we find our delight,
With pixels and apps, our days turn to night.
We're drawn to the glow, our faces aglow,
In the digital realm, time seems to flow.
From games and social media's embrace,
We lose ourselves in this endless space.
But what's the cost of screens' sweet allure,
As real-life connections slowly blur?
Our eyes grow tired, our sleep is disrupted,
Outdoor adventures left unconstructed.
It's time to unplug, to break the screen's spell,
And cherish the world where real stories dwell.
For screens may captivate with their gleam,
But life's true beauty is not in the screen.

